3 What is proposed is not the entertainment of any new hands, but the retention permanently of the 4 men ordered by Govt to be retrenched, but kept on pending retirement or absorption in vacancies.

4) Having regard not only to the position and prestige of the Judges, but also to the fact of their having to do a great deal of work at home in addn to their Court-hours, and peons and other papers having to be constantly circulated among themselves a menial staff of 1 Dafadar and 5 peons seems quite insufficient. [I can speak for this from my own experience while in the Chief Court. Besides the Dafadar who accompanied the Judge, there was always 1 peon attending in chambers; this would leave only 4 peons to be distributed for the usual three "turns," (allowing for leave, late attendance, &c) or a single peon per "turn." If a peon was sent with records or papers to a colleague, there would often be no one in attendance on the Judge at times when the Dafadar was absent.]

4 The necessity for additional peons for the office is also insisted on in the Regr's letter, consequent on the increase of work. The Regr's Registrar is a Gazetted officer, usually of the rank of a Munsiff, & as he has often to do work at home, a single home orderly as asked for is not too much.

5 The proposal may therefore be sanctioned.

1 All the points now urged were apparently before Govt when the no of menials was directed to be reduced by four. The said reduction was considered feasible and a staff of menials consisting of 1 Daffedar & 5 peons was deemed sufficient for each puisne Judge. The case for the addition of two more peons to the sanctioned scale, with a view to allow one more orderly to each puisne Judge is not therefore strong.

2) At least 9 peons are considered necessary for office work. The sanctioned scale provides for 30 peons of whom 21 are req?. for working as orderlies of the Judges & the Registrar. 9 peons are therefore available for office work & no addition on this account seem to be called for.

3) As for a peon for the Dy Registrar it is not clear why he was not overlooked in fixing the no. for the whole office. Please see p 21 of the Retrenchment Committee's Memorandum of 27-7-07. If one peon can not be spared out of the

Adverting to the Proceedings

Proceedings No. Fl 23-53 / Gj M 236-07-6 dated the 2nd July 1908 regarding the revision of the menial establishments attached to certain Head Quarter Offices, I am directed to request that Government may be pleased to to reconsider the order about further reducing the number of peons attached to this Court by 4. & having been reduced as per Govt. Pro: No. J/1400-1406 dated 27th November 1906. According to the extract from the memo of the Retrenchment Committee received with the Government Pro: of the 13th May 1908, 5 peons are to be detailed for duty as home orderlies for each puisne judge, the Dafadar joining the working set No. 2. The ~~The~~ Dafadar having to be in attendance on the judge in Court, his services are not available as home orderly and for a turn of 2 peons by day and 2 by night. 6 peons are needed for each judge. Even with this it will be difficult always for each judge to arrange for sending the records of cases &c in circulation to his colleagues

The Deputy Registrar was formerly allowed 1 horse orderly It seems necessary in the interests of the office that 1 horse should continue to be attached to him

Since the transfer of the original jurisdiction of the Bangalore Division to this Court 8 horses are found insufficient for the office The original Court is held downstairs and the appellate Court upstairs as usual and horses have constantly to run up and down The work of delivery of letters &c. has also increased At least 9 horses are required for the office

I am therefore to request that that the number of peons may be allowed to remain as at present without any reduction.

I have the honor to be
